

A road tripping, memory jogging, nostalgic look at the motels and signs from the 1940s, 1950s, 60s and 70s. The sleepy, hot and dusty desert town of Tucson Arizona is the setting for all of the images in Vacant Eden. With 80+ color, full page photographic plates, the book re-captures the unique and enticing motels that once beckoned to weary travelers, their signs hinting at exotic desert fantasies and imaginary Western themes. The fabulous and intense Southwestern light and color define the books architectural subjects, many of them have since been bull-dozed. The post WWII travel boom produced these icons that are now bypassed by the newer Interstate Highway system and its drab, cookie-cutter motels.
